Life is short. From experience, I know most of us want to spend our time with loved ones, doing things that fulfill us and bring joy; we want to spend our time on things that really matter. However, there are so many things that get in our way of achieving this. For this reason, we are constantly looking for different ways to save time. I want to make a lasting impact on this world by creating solutions that simplify people's lives. Personally, it brings me great satisfaction to see the impact that I can have on the lives of others. New technologies have played a fundamental function in reducing the amount of time we spend on daily tasks. With my passion for technology and helping others, I believe I can realize this goal by creating products or services that enable people to spend less time doing mundane tasks, and more time on life's passions.
